MISSOURI WALTZ

Someone with a touch of inspiration and a strong sense of humor gave the title "Missouri Waltz" to the recent book which describes the run-around Missouri voters have been getting at the hands of President Truman and the Pendergast gang.

Since the book has tremendous political importance in this presidential year, the tune has quickly become a sort of fighting word to supporters of the Truman Administration.

It is not likely that the musical composition will be the theme song of the Democratic convention—not unless Mr. Truman loses all grip of the situation. As a matter of fact, so high have feelings risen that the mere playing of the selection on the floor of the convention would likely start a riot.

The book is well worth reading. It is authentic, enlightening and interesting. Included in it is an excellent analysis of the factors which make a big city political gang "tick." The workings of machine politics are described in detail.

The author knows more about the subject than any man alive. He is Maurice M. Milligan, former United States Attorney for the Western District of Missouri—the man who sent "Boss" Tom Pendergast to jail, and thereby earned the undying hatred of President Truman.

Milligan smashed the Missouri Gang—President Truman rebuilt it. That's an outline of what the book's about.

The significance of the book is in the light it throws on the background, political education, ethical standards and methods of the man who now occupies the White House—and who will soon go before the voters to decide whether he will stay there.

As written, the central figure of the book is Tom Pendergast. But the man who steals the show is Harry S. Truman. The fact that Truman, instead of Pendergast, is the main theme is simply proved by pointing out that the story keeps on going, and gains in interest, after Pendergast goes to jail—even after his death.

In some ways it is a pity that the lawyer-author did not recognize this point, and weave the story directly around Mr. Truman. But as he notes at the outset, "I am no novelist." We therefore have a book in which the main character is, after all, of purely secondary interest—and the real attention is focused on a subordinate figure.

The Truman end of this story has been told sketchily many times. Here it is brought out again with every detail authenticated beyond question or denial.

Harry S. Truman, who had been a failure in several branches of civilian life—farming, road-overseer, mule-driver, haberdashery, etc.—had grown up admiring Tom Pendergast because of the success and power of his Kansas City gang.

In 1922, House Pendergast, looking for new blood in his political machine, offered to back Harry S. Truman for the position which in Missouri is called a county judge, the equivalent of a County Commissioner in Pennsylvania. The "Judge" so frequently put before the Truman name in his biographies is as meaningless as Kentucky Colonel.

This map shows where Soviet control points were established on the single rail line between Russia and the Western Powers and on the super-highway from Berlin to Hanover. At Marienborn (1), on the border between the Russian and British zones, the first crisis came when Soviet guards stopped trains, insisting on inspecting them. The Reds also established a road block on the highway. The crisis was averted when U. S. Military Governor Gen. YOUTH OF 16 SHOWS ARTISTIC TALENT

Edward Plowman, Jr., Completes 8 Pastels of Religious Subjects

IS BRISTOL HIGH JR.

A Bristol high school student, who hopes to enter the Christian ministry, has turned his artistic talent toward religious channels. The result is that seven chalk drawings in pastels grace the walls of the bedroom at 76 Schumacher Drive, Bristol Terrace I, occupied by Edward Plowman, Jr., 16.

Showing a natural ability for sketching and drawing since six years of age, Edward, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Plowman, passes many enjoyable hours in this manner.

Visiting in Philadelphia with his father when he was six years old, Edward, upon his return home, asked his mother if she would like him to draw a picture of a large boat he had seen. The result was such that his parents were surprised, particularly Mr. Plowman who noted the close resemblance to the boat which had attracted the lad's attention.

Using odd pieces of wall paper as a base, Edward has created seven pastels of religious subjects, each.

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

In defiance of Russian moves to halt United States, British and French trains and automobile transportation to and from Berlin, the United States Army began to transport food into the German capital by air yesterday to frustrate the apparent Russian aim of forcing the Western Powers out of the city. Soviet troops who had set up a traffic control station in the British sector of Berlin withdrew after they had been surrounded by 400 British troops and nine armored cars.

United States officials in Washington declared the Russians were legally and morally bound to allow United States trains into Berlin, although available legal documents covering the situation were subject to contradictory definitions. In London, the British Foreign Office was angered by the Russian action, but felt baffled as to how to meet it.

The Iranian Government sent to Moscow a note rejecting Soviet charges of undue United States influence in Tehran and accusing Russia of repeated violations of the 1921 Russo-Iranian treaty.

Strife and bloodshed again marked the day's developments in Palestine. A Jewish food convoy from Tel Aviv tried to penetrate an Arab cordon on the road to Jerusalem, where the Jewish quarter faced an increasingly critical situation, but

MISSOURI WALTZ

Someone with a touch of inspiration and a strong sense of humor gave the title "Missouri Waltz" to the recent book which describes the run-around Missouri voters have been getting at the hands of President Truman and the Pendergast gang.

Since the book has tremendous political importance in this presidential year, the tune has quickly become a sort of fighting word to supporters of the Truman Administration.

It is not likely that the musical composition will be the theme song of the Democratic convention—not unless Mr. Truman loses all grip of the situation. As a matter of fact, so high have feelings risen that the mere playing of the selection on the floor of the convention would likely start a riot.

The book is well worth reading. It is authentic, enlightening and interesting. Included in it is an excellent analysis of the factors which make a big city political gang "tick." The workings of machine politics are described in detail.

The author knows more about the subject than any man alive. He is Maurice M. Milligan, former United States Attorney for the Western District of Missouri—the man who sent "Boss" Tom Pendergast to jail, and thereby earned the undying hatred of President Truman.

Milligan smashed the Missouri Gang—President Truman rebuilt it. That's an outline of what the book's about.

The significance of the book is in the light it throws on the background, political education, ethical standards and methods of the man who now occupies the White House—and who will soon go before the voters to decide whether he will stay there.

As written, the central figure of the book is Tom Pendergast. But the man who steals the show is Harry S. Truman. The fact that Truman, instead of Pendergast, is the main theme is simply proved by pointing out that the story keeps on going, and gains in interest, after Pendergast goes to jail—even after his death.

In some ways, it is a pity that the lawyer-author did not recognize this point, and weave the story directly around Mr. Truman. But as he notes at the outset, "I am no novelist." We therefore have a book in which the main character is, after all, of purely secondary interest—and the real attention is focused on a subordinate figure.

The Truman end of this story has been told sketchily many times. Here it is brought out again with every detail authenticated beyond question or doubt.

Harry S. Truman, who had been a failure in several branches of civilian life—farming, road-overseer, mail-driver, haberdashery, etc.—had grown up admiring Tom Pendergast because of the success and power of his Kansas City gang.

In 1922, Boss Pendergast, looking for new blood in his political machine, offered to back Harry S. Truman for the position which in Missouri is called a county judgeship, the equivalent of a County Commissioner in Pennsylvania. The "Judge" so frequently put before the Truman name in his biographies is as meaningless as Kentucky Colonel.

LATEST NEWS BULLETINS

Spaniards Resent Congressional Action

Madrid—Spaniards bitterly resented today American Congressional action reversing the House of Representatives decision to include Spain in the European Recovery Program. The resentment was reflected in Generalissimo Franco's refusal to receive two American diplomats after he heard the news. Earlier he had said that he would see them. Franco did see Myron Taylor, president Truman's personal representative to the Vatican, and conferred with him for more than an hour. The controlled Spanish press charged that the action of the House-Senate conferees was "a triumph of minority opinion."

"Aerial Caravan" to Circumvent Soviet Transport Inspection Attempt

Berlin—The United States Army sent an "aerial caravan" winging into Berlin today to circumvent Soviet attempts to inspect American transport. A fleet of C-47 transports was dispatched from the Rhine-Main airfield in the U. S. western occupation zone to supply the American-held sector of Berlin.

Truman Vetoes Tax Reduction Bill

Washington—President Truman vetoed the four billion 800 million dollar tax reduction bill today with the warning that it would undermine government finances "at a time when world peace depends upon the strength of the United States." The President's veto message was submitted to the House shortly after noon and Republican leaders promptly prepared to override Mr. Truman and pass the measure without debate.

Philadelphia Policeman Kills Robbery Suspect

Philadelphia—A policeman shot and killed a robbery suspect today after surprising the alleged thief trying to flee with an armful of loot taken from an apartment building. The victim was identified as Ralph Lewis, 29, a Negro. The policeman who shot him was Steven Sable.

RED HOT SPOTS

This map shows where Soviet control points were established on the single rail line between Russia and the Western Powers and on the super-highway from Berlin to Hanover. At Marienborn (1), on the border between the Russian and British zones, the first crisis came when Soviet guards stopped trains, insisting on inspecting them. The Reds also established a road block on the highway. The crisis was averted when U. S. Military Governor Gen. Lucius Clay cancelled American rail travel and began using planes to supply his forces in Berlin.—(International)

YOUTH OF 16 SHOWS ARTISTIC TALENT

Edward Plowman, Jr., Completes 8 Pastels of Religious Subjects

IS BRISTOL HIGH JR.

A Bristol high school student, who hopes to enter the Christian ministry, has turned his artistic talent toward religious channels. The result is that seven chalk drawings in pastels grace the walls of the bedroom at 76 Schumacher Drive, Bristol Terrace 1, occupied by Edward Plowman, Jr., 16.

Showing a natural ability for sketching and drawing since six years of age, Edward, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Plowman, passes many enjoyable hours in this manner.

Visiting in Philadelphia with his father when he was six years old, Edward, upon his return home, asked his mother if she would like him to draw a picture of a large boat he had seen. The result was such that his parents were surprised, particularly Mr. Plowman who noted the close resemblance to the boat which had attracted the lad's attention.

Using odd pieces of wall paper as a base, Edward has created seven pastels of religious subjects, each Continued on Page Six

BUT DO IT RIGHT

The board of inquiry President Truman has set up to get the facts on the soft coal walkout has been given until April 5 to make its report. By that time the stoppage will be three weeks old and the coal supply will be at a dangerously low level.

It is this plain-to-be-seen situation that has led John D. Battle, executive secretary of the National Coal Association, to object to allowing the board of inquiry all the time contemplated by the President's order. But Battle advances another argument, which is that the facts of the case are already well known and that the board should be able to arrive at its findings "in a matter of hours."

There is surely every reason for speed. American industry runs on coal, to a very great extent, and it is imperative that it be kept running. The nation cannot afford to have production crippled at this time when there is a need for everything the factories can turn out, when shortages of goods would increase inflationary pressure and dampen the hopes of peoples abroad, when a failure to solve this problem promptly would be a temptation to Russian ambitions.

It is also true that the issue that brought the walkout appears to be relatively simple to describe if difficult—because of the attitude of John L. Lewis—to resolve. The board should be able to grasp it without trouble and put it into words fairly quickly. But the miners are already out. They do not mind a vacation at this time of year. A little later on they may be more of a mind to go back to work.

DUBIOUS CONCLUSION

Important as it is to make air travel as safe as possible, regulations to that end ought to be reasonable and fair. To meet the test of reasonableness, they should be demonstrably capable of contributing to the purpose in view. To meet the test of fairness, they should be so drawn as to minimize injustice to individuals.

By these standards, one recommendation made by the aviation subcommittee of the Senate Commerce Committee is open to grave question. The subcommittee report, just made public, says:

"All pilots who have had major accidents should have their certificates canceled automatically and should be reinstated after approximately one year, and then only after a thorough rescreening."

At present pilots who have been involved in major crashes are grounded for 30 days. The committee considers this period insufficient because a study made by Dr. Daniel Horn of the Air Forces medical branch concludes that pilots who have had an accident are nearly 10 times more likely to have another in the 30 days following than accident-free pilots.

*So far no patriot has refused to be considered for that high office because he would rather be right than President.

Missouri Waltz

The Commissioners at that period had the disposition of immense patronage. It is estimated that he helped in the handling of $60,000,000 of the public's money. The lion's share of this was spent with firms in which Pendergast was owner or partner. The Boss was, for example, operating the so-called Ready-Mixed Concrete Company, which had a virtual monopoly. He was a full or controlling partner in half a dozen other concerns engaged in the manufacture or sale of materials bought by the county.

The way in which the Truman-Pendergast combination functioned in the handling of this huge amount of public funds is too obvious to need detailing. Harry Truman, from the Ross Pendergast point of view, was a perfect man for the job.

In 1934, Pendergast paid off to Harry Truman for the latter's long service. After two other choices had dropped out of the race for U. S. Senator, Pendergast selected Truman for that job. In a hot primary fight, Truman lost badly throughout the state, but was carried to victory in the Kansas City districts, where later investigations revealed that Pendergast was using between 40,000 and 60,000 "ghosts"—fake votes cast in the disguise of names copied from tombstones. Truman won by 41,000. Looking back, it seems inescapable that more than that many of the votes cast for him were phony.

In 1939, Pendergast went to prison after pleading guilty to charges of fraud, graft and tax-evasion. The following year, when Senator Truman came up for re-election, he joined with the Boss' son, Jim Pendergast, and these two, aided by Bob Hannegan, who afterwards was to become Democratic National Chairman, rebuilt the Pendergast gang sufficiently to send Truman back to the senate in an eye-lash finish.

With Truman's backing, Hannegan succeeded Jim Farley at the top position in the Democratic Party, and in the 1944 convention was one of those who helped work out the deal between President Roosevelt, the late Sidney Hillman of the CIO, and a string of big-city political bosses—the deal which made Truman Vice President and subsequently President.

The arrogance and corruption of the revived Pendergast gang, stimulated by President Truman's demand for the "purging" of Congressmen Slaughter, led to the outrageous vote-stealing in 1946, which focused the eyes of the whole nation on the kind of "playmates" Mr. Truman consorted with in his own back yard.

Thanks to the reluctance of the U. S. Department of Justice to investigate a scandal which might embarrass the President and his friends in Missouri, and thanks also to the inspiration of some unknown figure in hiring professional safe-crackers to steal most of the evidence upon which some eighty indictments had been found, the Missouri vote fraud has been stalled along for more than a year and a half without any final determination of the exact part President Truman played in it.

Whether more facts will be added to the careful outline of this story which "Missouri Waltz" contains, between now and November, remains to be seen.

But the book reveals enough. Every voter in the United States, every sincere man and woman who wants to support the best in public morality and trustworthiness in high office, ought to be made familiar with this story before they attempt to decide between candidates this fall.

The nation cannot afford to have production crippled at this time when there is a need for everything the factories can turn out, when shortages of goods would increase inflationary pressure and dampen the hopes of peoples abroad, when a failure to solve this problem promptly would be a temptation to Russian ambitions.

It is also true that the issue that brought the walkout appears to be relatively simple to describe if difficult—because of the attitude of John L. Lewis—to resolve. The board should be able to grasp it without trouble and put it into words fairly quickly.

But the miners are already out. They do not mind a vacation at this time of year. A little later on they may be more of a mind to go back to work.

DUBIOUS CONCLUSION

Important as it is to make air travel as safe as possible, regulations to that end ought to be reasonable and fair. To meet the test of reasonableness, they should be demonstrably capable of contributing to the purpose in view. To meet the test of fairness, they should be so drawn as to minimize injustice to individuals.

By these standards, one recommendation made by the aviation subcommittee of the Senate Commerce Committee is open to grave question. The subcommittee report, just made public, says:

"All pilots who have had major accidents should have their certificates canceled automatically and should be reinstated after approximately one year, and then only after a thorough rescreening."

At present pilots who have been involved in major crashes are grounded for 30 days. The committee considers this period insufficient because a study made by Dr. Daniel Horn of the Air Forces medical branch concludes that pilots who have just had an accident are nearly 10 times more likely to have another in the 30 days following than accident-free pilots.

"So far no patriot has refused to be considered for that high office because he would rather be right than President."

Missouri Waltz

The Commissioners at that period had the disposition of immense patronage. It is estimated that he helped in the handling of $60,000,000 of the public's money. The lion's share of this was spent with firms in which Pendergast was owner or partner. The Boss was, for example, operating the so-called Ready-Mixed Concrete Company, which had a virtual monopoly. He was a full or controlling partner in half a dozen other concerns engaged in the manufacture or sale of materials bought by the county.

The way in which the Truman-Pendergast combination functioned in the handling of this huge amount of public funds is too obvious to need detailing. Harry Truman, from the Boss Pendergast point of view, was a perfect man for the job.

In 1934, Pendergast paid off to Harry Truman for the latter's long service. After two other choices had dropped out of the race for U. S. Senator, Pendergast selected Truman for that job. In a hot primary fight, Truman lost badly throughout the state, but was carried to victory in the Kansas City districts, where later investigations revealed that Pendergast was using between 40,000 and 60,000 "ghosts"—fake votes cast in the disguise of names copied from tombstones. Truman won by 41,000. Looking back, it seems inescapable that more than that many of the votes cast for him were phantoms.

In 1939 Boss Pendergast went to prison after pleading guilty to charges of fraud, graft and tax-evasion. The following year, when Senator Truman came up for re-election, he joined with the Boss's son, Jim Pendergast, and these two, aided by Bob Hannegan, who afterwards was to become Democratic National Chairman, rebuilt the Pendergast gang sufficiently to send Truman back to the senate in an eye-lash finish.

With Truman's backing, Hannegan succeeded Jim Farley at the top position in the Democratic Party, and in the 1944 convention was one of those who helped work out the deal between President Roosevelt, the late Sidney Hillman of the CIO, and a string of big-city political bosses—the deal which made Truman Vice President and subsequently President.

The arrogance and corruption of the revived Pendergast gang, stimulated by President Truman's demand for the "purging" of Congressmen Slaughter, led to the outrageous vote-stealing in 1946, which focused the eyes of the whole nation on the kind of "playmates" Mr. Truman consorted with in his own back yard.

Thanks to the reluctance of the U. S. Department of Justice to investigate a scandal which might embarrass the President and his friends in Missouri, and thanks also to the inspiration of some unknown figure in hiring professional safe-crackers to steal most of the evidence upon which some eighty indictments had been found, the Missouri vote fraud has been stalled along for more than a year and a half, without any final determination of the exact part President Truman played in it.

Whether more facts will be added to the careful outline of this story which "Missouri Waltz" contains, between now and November, remains to be seen.

But the book reveals enough. Every voter in the United States, every sincere man and woman who wants to support the best in public morality and trustworthiness in high office, ought to be made familiar with this story before they attempt to decide between candidates this fall.

approved by the two branches of Congress, eliminated Spain from the list of nations to receive aid despite two House votes favoring Spain. The conferees agreed that the question of aid beneficiaries should be determined by the European nations that formulated the European Recovery Program.

Several veterans' organizations, including the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, supported President Truman's program for a temporary draft and universal military training in testimony before the Senate Armed Services Committee.

The Taft bill to aid education was approved by the Senate, 58 to 22. The bill authorized the states to decide for themselves whether any of the Federal help, estimated to cost $300,000,000 in the first year of operation, should be extended to private and parochial schools.

President Truman notified Congress he would ask for at least $3,000,000,000 in new armament appropriations as he made known that he would veto the Republican-sponsored tax-reduction measure today.

Several Wills Are Probated At County Seat

dalen, Minneapolis, Minnesota, and a nephew, Jessie E. Senik, 77 Brook Lane, Trenton, N. J., are the heirs. The decedent died January 20.

The widow, Elsie Ketterer, 129 East Maple avenue, Langhorne, was granted the letters of administration in the estate of Charles H. Ketterer, Langhorne, amounting to an estate of $200. The widow and a daughter, Charlotte, are the heirs. The decedent died July 6, 1947.

James Walter Cogan, retired American Telephone and Telegraph statistician who died here October 4, 1947, named his widow, Grace Adams Cogan, 49 North Clinton street, this place, the beneficiary of his $12,000 estate.

The testator, who wrote his will November 14, 1939, at 24 Madison avenue, Glen Ridge, N. J., named his widow the executrix also. He stipulated no specific bequests for their daughter, Ellen, because he "knew that her mother would provide for her."

The will directed that in the case of the death of Mrs. Cogan, prior to the testator, the daughter should be the heir. The personal estate was valued at $7,000 and real estate holdings of $5,000 were listed.

measuring about 2x2 1/2 feet. The subjects are: "The Last Supper," "Jesus Praying in the Garden," "Judas Kiss," "Agony in the Garden," "St. Peter Denying Christ," "Jesus Scourged," and "Christ Presented to the People."

The eighth and largest of his pastels, measuring about 4x3 feet, is of "Christ Overlooking the Ruined City." This was completed in two days spare time.

Edward has done some work in pen and ink, but enjoys the work with pastel chalk mainly. While a student at Bristol township junior high school he made a number of posters in connection with school work. The youth, a junior at Bristol high, is also active in young people's work at First Baptist Church.

Farmers Threaten To Quit Tomato Crops

WOODBURY, N. J., Apr. 2. (INS)—Organized farmers in New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania are threatening to abandon production of tomatoes on the contention that they cannot operate on prices offered by the Campbell Soup Co.

Lester E. Jones, of Medford, N. J., president of the New Jersey-Pennsylvania Tomato Growers Assoc., said yesterday after a directors' meeting in Woodbury that the soup company has offered $5 a ton less than the farmers need.

Jones added he would recommend a general transfer to other crops at a mass meeting in Moorestown next Tuesday. The New Jersey-Eastern Pennsylvania area produces about 300,000 tons of tomatoes yearly.

Negotiations with the company were carried on by Jones, Herman Hoston, of Newtown, Pa.; Hobart Gardiner, Vincentown, and Henry Belbus, of Wrightstown, N. J.

dalen, Minneapolis, Minnesota, and a nephew, Jessie E. Senik, 77 Brook Lane, Trenton, N. J., are the heirs. The decedent died January 20.
The widow, Elsie Ketterer, 129 East Maple avenue, Langhorne, was granted the letters of administration in the estate of Charles H. Ketterer, Langhorne, amounting to an estate of $200. The widow and a daughter, Charlotte, are the heirs. The decedent died July 6, 1947.
James Walter Cogan, retired American Telephone and Telegraph statistician who died here October 4, 1947, named his widow, Grace Adams Cogan, 49 North Clinton street, this place, the beneficiary of his $12,000 estate.
The testator, who wrote his will November 14, 1939, at 21 Madison avenue, Glen Ridge, N. J., named his widow the executrix also. He stipulated no specific bequests for their daughter, Ellen, because he "knew that her mother would provide for her."
The will directed that in the case of the death of Mrs. Cogan, prior to the testator, the daughter should be the heir. The personal estate was valued at $7,000 and real estate holdings of $5,000 were listed.

Farmers Threaten To Quit Tomato Crops

WOODBURY, N. J., Apr. 2 (INS)—Organized farmers in New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania are threatening to abandon production of tomatoes on the contention that they cannot operate on prices offered by the Campbell Soup Co.
Lester E. Jones, of Medford, N. J., president of the New Jersey-Pennsylvania Tomato Growers Assoc., said yesterday after a directors' meeting in Woodbury that the soup company has offered $5 a ton less than the farmers need.
Jones added he would recommend a general transfer to other crops at a mass meeting in Moorestown next Tuesday. The New Jersey-Eastern Pennsylvania area produces about 300,000 tons of tomatoes yearly.
Negotiations with the company were carried on by Jones, Herman Henton, of Newtown, Pa.; Hobart Gardiner, Vincentown, and Henry Deibus, of Wrightstown, N. J.

Today's Quiet Moment

By The Rev. Charles H. Weller
Pastor

—O—

Unto Thee O Lord we lift our hearts this day in prayer and praise, and in petition that Thou wilt continue with us along the common way. We confess our sin and worldliness and seek Thy forgiveness. We pray with humble sincerity for blessings upon those who are in authority over us, that they may be possessed of a wisdom greater than their own. Help them to stand firm in their championship of the right and to frown upon all unworthy prejudice that Thy Kingdom may come in the larger affairs of the nation and the world. Amen.

Today's Quiet Moment

By The Rev. Charles H. Weller
Pastor
Bristol Methodist Church

Unto Thee O Lord we lift our hearts this day in prayer and praise, and in petition that Thou wilt continue with us along the common way. We confess our sin and worldliness and seek Thy forgiveness. We pray with humble sincerity for blessings upon those who are in authority over us, that they may be possessed of a wisdom greater than their own. Help them to stand firm in their championship of the right and to frown upon all unworthy prejudice that Thy Kingdom may come in the larger affairs of the nation and the world. Amen.

Bullet shock secrets . . .

1. Shock beginning after solid point bullet penetrates gelatin block.

2. Major shock reached when solid point bullet is about 1 ft. beyond.

3. Mushrooming hollow point produces greater shock than solid.

4. Dramatic proof of hollow point's greater shock. Bullet is 1 ft. away.

Science has now confirmed the best hunter's choice of hollow point rather than ordinary solid point bullets as the superior test ammunition in 22 caliber. A dramatic ballistic experiment to show the greater shocking power of hollow point bullets also uncovered the important bonus information that maximum shock occurs not on impact, as it has long been believed, but after the passage of the bullet. This is true because the tissues pushed aside by the bullet in turn act on other tissues over a wide area, but at a speed slower than that of the bullet.

In this experiment, ballisticians in the research laboratories of Western Cartridge Company division of Olin Industries, Inc., fired hollow and solid point Super-X 22 caliber long rifle bullets into blocks of specially prepared gelatin which closely resembles animal tissue. Photographs were made at three millionths of a second just after the bullets had passed through the gelatin and again when they were about one foot beyond.

Expansion of the gelatin blocks in the lower photographs is greater because the mushrooming hollow-point displaces more material from its path than the solid-point bullet. More energy is absorbed from the hollow-point and shock caused by the greater displacement of material is therefore greater.

TOURNAMENT
THRENTON CARLIN vs. HARRIMAN A. A.

(High School Room, 7:30 p. m.)

With three teams eliminated last night, the four remaining teams of the Lower Bucks County Tournament will clash tonight on the high school floor, starting at 7:30 o'clock. The teams eliminated last night were the Bristol Methodist Boys Club, Trenton Friars and Penn A. C. Winners of the games were the Trenton Carlin and Harriman A. A. Franklin did not play last night, having drawn a bye.

The Bristol Township contingent swamped the Methodist Boys Club, 61-39. The Township lads built up a 17-9 lead at the first quarter and increased this to 32-13 at the half-way mark. Leading the township lads in the first half drive were "Reds" Gallagher and John Ennis who scored a quintet of fielders each. For the Methodist Jack Rosser and Jimmy Marshall were responsible for 11 points.

By scoring the 41 points, the Township team broke the tournament record of 52 set by the Harriman team last Tuesday night.

Gallagher and Ennis paved the way for Township's triumph with 18 and 15 points, respectively.

The tilt between the Trenton Carlin and the Trenton Friars was the best played thus far in the tournament. The game was close until mid-way in the final quarter when the Carlin put on a spurge which netted them a 50-40 win.

At one stage of the game, the Friars, a team composed mostly of Trenton Catholic students, held an eight-point advantage. But the Carlin club played a good steady game and went ahead in the second quarter when "Bill" Appleton scored twice in succession. The Carlin team managed to keep the lead for the remainder of the game, although at one point, Trenton Friars came within three points of tying the count.

"Jim" Ryan and Appleton tabbed 38 of the winners' points with Ryan getting 19 field goals and a foul

Applegate, All-Jersey football selection from Trenton High, accounted for 17 points.

Jim Merkel and Joe Fox were high point grabbers for the Friars although Jim Haggerty played fine defensive ball and despite his small stature had possession of the ball most of the game.

Penn A. C. was overwhelmed by the Harriman club, 35-20. The contest was one-sided from start to finish. The Pennacs were poor shots and were blanked from the floor in the first and third periods. However in the last session they outscored the Harriman team.

Johnny Pindar was again high for Harriman with 15 points, 13 of which came in the first half. "Al" Barton had nine points. George Adams led the losing aggregation with 7 points.

The final games of the tournament will be played Saturday night. Immediately after the games, the awarding of the trophies and medals will take place.

SPORTSMEN'S
BRIEFS

BY JOE ELBERSON

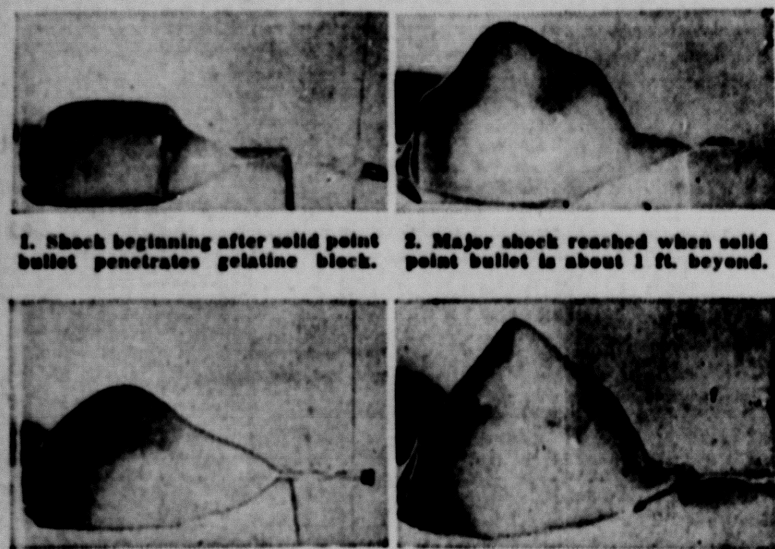

Combination shoot . . . this Sunday, beginning at 1 p. m., the Edgely Rod & Gun Club will hold both a white flyer and a blue rock target shoot over the club trap in Edgely. Ammunition available. All shooters welcome.

Meeting . . . the Bucks County Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs will hold its April meeting next Monday, April 5th, at eight p. m., in the K. G. E. Hall, Doylestown. Delegates from all member clubs are urged to be on hand.

Good again . . . following the recession of the abnormally high water in the Neshaminy Creek the sucker fishermen are again beginning to take some nice fish in this stream, particularly in the Hulmeville section.

New building . . . construction of a new building for the Morrisville Fish & Game Protective Association has begun on Hillcrest avenue, between North Pennsylvania and Stockham avenues. Herman Margerum, Sr., has the contract for the one-story building. It will be ready for occupancy by June.

Bullet shock secrets . . .

1. Shock beginning after solid point bullet penetrates gelatin block. 2. Major shock reached when solid point bullet is about 1 ft. beyond.

3. Mushrooming hollow point produces greater shock than solid. 4. Dramatic proof of hollow point's greater shock. Bullet is 1 ft. away.

Science has now confirmed the hunter's choice of hollow point rather than ordinary solid point bullets as the superior type ammunition in 22 caliber. A dramatic ballistic experiment to show the greater shocking power of hollow point bullets also uncovered the important bonus information that maximum shock occurs not on impact, as it has long been believed, but after the passage of the bullet. This is true because the tissues pushed aside by the bullet in turn act on other tissues over a wide area, but at a speed slower than that of the bullet.

In this experiment, ballistics in the research laboratories of Western Cartridge Company division of Olin Industries, Inc., fired hollow and solid point Super-X 22 caliber long rifle bullets into blocks of specially prepared gelatin which closely resembles animal tissue. Photographs were made at three millionths of a second just after the bullets had passed through the gelatin and again when they were about one foot beyond.

Expansion of the gelatin blocks in the lower photographs is greater because the mushrooming hollow-point displaces more material from its path than the solid-point bullet. More energy is absorbed from the hollow-point and shock caused by the greater displacement of material is therefore greater.
